Buffalo Bills vs. New York Jets

1. Attached to bottom of this document.
2. Twitter or X page: https://twitter.com/amorel_nsu
3. The results of my live tweeting were not shocking in any way. I had no replies and averaged 2 views per tweet. I was surprised to have received any views due to the newness of my account, with my highest viewed tweet having 18 views.

While football is not a sport that I am very knowledgeable about I did find that as the game continued it was easier to understand certain plays and be able to report it. I found that having the transcript for the ESPN coverage that I was watching running at the same time as the game allowed me to catch up whenever things were happening too fast.

The transcript also allowed me to be able to see how the writing for football reporting which is I then adjusted mine to fit the standard. Once I adjusted my writing it was a lot easier to keep up with the game.

- a. Challenging: I found it extremely challenging to keep up with what was occurring during the game. I took the commercial and time out breaks to catch up.
- b. Useful: While watching the game I also had the transcription of ESPN on my computer screen at the same time in case I missed something, or plays were being said too fast. This allowed me to read the plays and the type of writing language used when reporting football.
- c. Unexpected: While I did not receive any replies, I was surprised to see that my tweets did have views on them.
- d. Useful: I found it helpful to have the knowledge of the player names to be able to report a lot faster.
- e. Interesting: At some Points I had to change the ending of my tweets since some actions were repeated and X (Twitter) would not allow me to post.
